Coptic Texts from Kellis

Dr. Anthony Alcock writes (26 June 1993):

Excavations at the site of ancient Kellis (modern Ismant al-Kharab) in the Dakhleh Oasis have been in progress since 1986 under the directorship of Dr C.A. Hope of the University of Monash. Textual material has been recovered from several areas of the site, the richest area being a domestic quarter in which four houses have been excavated so far. In the 1990-91 season approximately 3000 fragments of papyrus and a quantity of wooden writing boards were recovered from House Three.

Of the texts recovered so far about 70% are Greek, the rest Coptic, with a sprinkling of latin, Syriac and Demotic. The Greek texts contain dates ranging between 260 AD and 396 AD.

The Coptic texts are both literary and non-literary, are not dated (as one might expect) and contain dialectal features belonging to the areas usually designated as "sub-Akhmimic" and "Akhmimic". Many of the literary texts are Manichaean, while the non-literary texts are mostly letters, some Manichaean and others not. Of the Manichaean letters the most informative is a long and poorly written document (inventory no. P.84) from father (Makarios) to son (Mathew), in which the "son of righteousness" (Mathew) is exhorted to "be in virtuous conduct, as the Paraclete said, 'The disciple of righteousness is found, the fear of his master being upon him though he is far from him, like a guardian'". Makarios further urges his son to "study the Psalms, whether in Greek or Coptic". These are only two extracts from a letter that will yield much more information. Of the Manichaean letters a group of six has been identified so far that seem to originate from a "family": Makarios (father), Maria (mother), Mathew (son) and Piena (son).

All the letters are well-provided with elaborate greeting containing a wealth of names, both proper and place names. There seems to have been regular traffic between the Oasis and the Nile Valley. Several letters refer to quantities of wool and *H^E: CD 801a translates this as "purple dye". It seems highly improbable that it can be the same as the purple produced by the murex or purpura shellfish, but may refer to some dye produced by indigo overdyed with red matter.

3rd Conference on Manichaean Studies

Prof. Luigi Cirillo writes (19 March 1993):

The 3rd International Conference on Manichaean Studies will be held at the University of Calabria, Centre for Religious Studies, in Rende (Cosenza), from 31 August to 5 September. Until now it has not been possible to find a single title to indicate precisely the general theme of the conference. However, with the help of various friends and colleagues, several sections have been proposed, which should be of interest to all the participants. The themes are the following: 1) "Urmanichaeism" (and Mani Codex), 2) the evolution west of the Euphrates, and 3) Mani's teachings in the eastern Manichaean traditions.

Varia

Dr. Marian Robertson Wilson writes (January 14, 1993):

- 1) Thanks to the generosity of Mr. Ragheb Moftah, the Library of Congress has acquired his large collection of Coptic music recordings. The original tapes are to be preserved in the Library's archives, with excellent copies to be made available to any interested scholars. A "Guide", identifying and explaining the use of the myriad melodies, plus transcriptions and translations of the texts, is now being prepared.
- 2) During October, 1992, I presented a series of four seminars on Coptic music at the University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah. Sponsored jointly by the University's Department of Music, the Middle East Center, and Department of Continuing Education, the series was very successful and may be repeated at a later date.

Prof. S. Kent Brown writes (April 19, 1993):

I have been asked to serve as the director of the Brigham Young University's Jerusalem Center for Near Eastern Studies. It is a three-year assignment.

Manuscript on microfilm at Brigham Young University: Please direct all correspondence about Christian manuscripts microfilmed in Cairo and Jerusalem by me to: Dr. Gary P. GILLUM, 4222 Lee Library, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah 84602, USA.

REQUEST

The Editor would like to keep an adjourned list of places where Coptic language, or literature, or art, or archaeology, or theology, etc., are taught. The colleagues are kindly requested to send information on this subject. The list will be published periodically in the Newsletter.

The Editor would like also to keep a list of the Coptic Centres (i.e. cultural Centres managed by Coptic people, or people of Coptic origin) outside of Egypt. The colleagues are kindly requested to send information on this subject. The list will be published periodically in the Newsletter.

RECENT PUBLICATIONS ANNOUNCED BY MEMBERS

Prof. Tito Orlandi informs:

1) The new issue of the Coptic Bibliography (November 1993). The Bibliography is in printed form, and it is distributed in two sections: Numerical List. ca. 200 p. Contains all the entries, with full bibliographical information. To be acquired once for all, and adjourned yearly with supplements and with replacements (where mistakes are corrected, etc.), which are sent together with the yearly issues (next item).
Yearly Indexes. 3 vols., ca. 280, 60, 20 p. Contain the entries, distributed according to the subject, and (within the subjects) in alphabetical order of author name; the index in alphabetical order of the names of the authors; the supplement, with the new entries of the current year. Subjects complete from the beginning of the studies: BIBBIA; GNOSTICISMO; APOCRYPHA; LETTERATURA; AGIOGRAFIA; STORIA; GENERALIA (partially); MANOSCRITTI (partially). The other subjects (LINGUISTICA; ARCHEOLOGIA, and parts of GENERALIA, MANOSCRITTI and STORIA) start from 1980, and the previous titles will be completed in the future. The Yearly Indexes are distributed each year, and each issue completely replaces the previous one.
Last year published: 1993.

The Members of the IACS are entitled to a special discount.

Cairo: The Coptic Museum and Old Churches, By Gawdat GABRA and Anthony ALCOCK, Egyptian International Publishing Co Longman. This book is part of a new series of guidebooks, shortly to be published by Longman, on the three principal Museums of Cairo - the Egyptian, Islamic and Coptic. It provides in the first section a history of the Church in Egypt, its literature, art, music and monastic life. The second section features a presentation of a selection from the Coptic artifacts in the Coptic Museum, beautifully illustrated with colour photographs. In the third section the churches of Old Cairo are described, with special attention given to their architecture and significance to the life of the Church in Egypt. The book will be available during the 1993-4 period through: Sphinx Bookshop, 3 Shawerby Street (3rd Floor), Cairo (price LE 25 per copy).

Kerel C. INNEMÉE, Ecclesiastical Dress in the Medieval Near East, Brill 1992 (Studies in Textile and Costume History, 1). The starting-point of this research were questions surrounding the liturgical costume in the Nubian Church. Through a method of comparison of Nubian dress with Coptic, Syrian, Armenian, and Byzantine costume, the author has tried to throw light on the costumes of the Churches in the Near East and on the history of their liturgical and monastic vestments, which developed from basic - often civil - clothes into a most complicated system where symbolism has been mixed with practical purpose.

NEWS ON PUBLICATIONS FORTHCOMING OR IN PREPARATION

The reader is reminded that this is not meant to be a bibliography, but an opportunity for the Members to announce their works in progress and to know their colleagues' ones. This is especially useful for those who work on unpublished material. (A special thank to S. Emmel for his help). Each of the items, once listed, will keep appearing until it is published. When its publication is announced (under the corresponding title) it will be canceled. It may happen that an item keeps appearing in the list after it is published, if the Author does not remind it to the Editor of the Newsletter.

Members are requested to keep sending their announcements.
